GETS DIPLOMA—William O. Presnell, in charge of maintenance at the Laboratory building, is shown receiving his Cone Vocational School Diploma in Machine Shop theory and practice. Presentation was made by Raymond Kincaid, assistant superintendent of Proximity Plant at a dinner meeting honoring vocational students on Thursday night of last week. Sixty-five certificates were presented by Wallace Bourne during the program. Mr. Presnell was the only one receiving a diploma.

Cone Vocational Classes Get Certificates, Diploma

Sixty-two certificates and one diploma were awarded to Cone Mills Vocational Class members at the annual "commencement" program Thursday night of last week Wallace Bourne presented the certificates, and Raymond Kincaid, assistant superintendent of Proximity Plant, presented the diploma to William O. Presnell, in charge of maintenance of the Laboratory Building.

In presenting the certificates, Mr. Bourne pointed out that industry needs trained people. He referred to the changes in modern industry as challenges to employees to learn all they can in order to take advantage of opportunities that may arise. He told the group that the superintendents of their respective plants would be informed fully of their accomplishments.

Boyd Squires was master of ceremonies. Chester Arnold, personnel director; Coley Phillips, superintendent of Revolution Flannel Plant, Lennie Ritter and Johnie Lowe also of Revolution and Mr. Kincaid were among the guests.

P.T.A. BOARD TO MEET

Executive Board of Proximity PTA will meet next Tuesday night, April 3 at the school with Mrs. Merlin Beaver presiding.

16th Street Baptists Pay Tribute To Pastor

Members of Sixteenth Street Baptist church recently observed Pastor Appreciation Day. The pastor, William L. Bennett, did not know about this day because it had been publicized as X DAY.

Mrs. Lena Starling was the program chairman, and she planned the program for both worship services and the fellowship hour after the evening worship service. For the morning service, there was a duet by Mrs. Bennett, the pastor's wife, and Ernest Holt, the educational director. Vaughn Brady sang a solo for the evening worship service. Mrs. Beulah Tew, presented the pastor a white carnation and the pastor's wife a yellow rose corsage, during the morning worship service. Lawrence Hill, the publicity chairman, provided a lapel emblem to each member of the church with these words upon it, "I appreciate my pastor."

A special service was held in the Educational Building of the Church immediately after the evening worship service. The service was opened with singing and prayer. A girl's quartet, composed of Joyce Owens, Vearle Page, Faye Murphy, and Magdalene Pinkelton, sang. Rockford Hill, the chairman of the Deacons, and Rosa Lou Holmes, the president of the Woman's Missionary Union gave short appreciation talks.

Tommy Michael, chairman of the gift committee, presented the pastor a leather desk chair as a present of appreciation from the members of the church. Mrs. Rosa Michael served refreshments to the 200 persons who were present at the fellowship hour.

Pineville's Spinning Department's Safety Claims Are Proved True

Pineville Plant's record of accident prevention seemed a little frazzled during 1955 when nine people were injured severely enough to cause disability. With a frequency of 10.0 and with eight other Cone plants doing better, there seemed little to brag about at Pineville. But Elmo Scott, Pineville's overseer of Spinning, formerly of Proximity Plant, likes to see credit properly given, especially if it is given to the people in his department. Posted on his Spinning Room bulletin board is a legend saying that the last disabling injury in that department happened in August 1954.

Rumors that the FBI, Senator McCarthy, and Harry Truman all intended to investigate Elmo's claim proved to be unfounded (according to a usually reliable source who requested that his name be withheld.) However, a check was made and the whole truth may now be told—without reservation. But don't read further if you have a weak heart, for truth may be more startling than fiction.

Pineville Spinning's last lost time injury occurred on August 5, 1954. From that time to February 12, 1956, the department has rolled up 436,940 employee hours without a disabling injury! If there were no serious injuries during the last half of February, the total should now stand at more than half a million man hours.

Many a good sized plant would like to be able to equal this department's record, and our hats are off to all of the employees in Elmo Scott's Spinning Room.

If there is any other department in the Company which can equal this record, the Textorian would like to hear about it and will, upon verification, publish the facts!

Funeral Held For Retired Employee

Funeral service for B. L. Wood, 72, of 1211 Walnut Street, who died last Monday in Moses Cone Hospital was held Wednesday at Eller Memorial Baptist Church. Rev. John Edwards, pastor, and Rev. G. E. White, pastor of Carraway Memorial Methodist Church officiated. Burial was in Guilford Memorial Park.

A lifelong resident of Guilford County, he was a member of Eller Memorial Baptist Church and a retired employee of the Proximity Plant.

Survivors are one son, Lee Wood of Greensboro; eight daughters, Mrs. Ersley Thore, Mrs. Esther May, Mrs. Frances Smith, Mrs. Virginia Dagenhart of Greensboro, Mrs. Sarah Jones and Misses Minnie and Margaret Wood of the home and Mrs. Helen Lucas of Bishopville, S. C.; four brothers, T. M. Eugene and John Wood of High Point and Earl Wood of Martinsville, Va.; and 12 grandchildren.

Employee's Idea Brings Glamour Interest To Salisbury Easter Parade

Some of the women in Salisbury will probably be wearing smaller size clothes on Easter morning and will be subjects of envy all because of the ingenuity of two matrons there, one of whom is employed in the Salisbury Plant office, Mrs. Ken (Frances) Monroe.

ON BRAINS TEAM—Stephen Walton Vaughn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Vaughn, 1525 Andover Avenue, was chosen to represent all boys at Proximity School on the Greensboro Recor's Brains Team. Stephen is one of the all-city team of seven boys and seven girls chosen by the city schools faculty from thousands of students in the Greensboro senior and junior high schools.

Known as the Streamliners Club, this group is determined to get off some of the excessive weight brought on by excessive stuffing during the winter season. Rigid rules are enforced to a point that if broken the offender pays one dollar to a charitable cause. Regular check-ups on members are made by Mrs. Monroe and the club's co-founder, Mrs. W. A. White. There's no getting around it, figures talk for any member breaking the rules.

Realizing the danger of speedy reducing and knowing the aches and pains that follow strenuous exercise, they remembered seven vibrating machines stored away in an upstairs room of a building there in Salisbury. The machines have been approved by local doctors as has the low calorie diet adopted by the club.

They started their reducing club by calling 25 "slightly" overweight friends expecting about 10 to show up. Twenty came and became the weights anonymous group. They can discuss their own weight but never anybody else's.

Winners in the weight losing game are rewarded with worthwhile prizes.

At the end of the 21 week experiment members are asked to wear the dress they wore the first night of the club's existence for a fashion show of what they hope will be very droopy clothes.

Frances says, "One of the things all of us will learn in the class is to control our emotions. Too many times when we are upset, we reach for something to eat, Now we must train ourselves to reach for something more constructive to do."

She herself is a needlepoint enthusiast; other members do sewing, knitting or painting.

Membership in the Streamliners entitles women to 15 minutes a week with the machine of her choice. Among the machines and the table that takes away the tummy, the hip trimmer, the reducing horse and two machines for the back.

They are devoting their discussions to diet talk at present but hope to go into the subject of hair styles and make-up later.

With the main objective being the shedding of poundage, the Easter parade in Salisbury will take on a new glamour Sunday morning when these lassies emerge in their slim skirted suits and dresses.

TO SPEAK—Clarence N. Cone, vice president of Cone Mills Corporation, will address the second annual Service Award group of Salisbury Plant Saturday night, April 7 at Coburn Memorial Methodist Church. A dinner in honor of over 100 employees there with 25 years or more service will begin at 6:30 p.m. Six will receive 25-year pins. Charlie File of the plant's Slashing Department, will receive a 50-year service award. Entertainment will be by the children from the Junior Order Home, Lexington, Robert B. Bruton, director.

Com. Frank Crane Gives Plant Safety Challenge; Cone Units Get Awards

"You are here today to receive safety awards because you were awake in 1955 and got your employees to be awake to accomplish safe practices," said Frank Crane, North Carolina Commissioner of Labor at the Wednesday luncheon sponsored by Greensboro Industries, Inc. and the Chamber of Commerce.

Commissioner Crane congratulated the large cross-section of local industry present on their fine safety records and presented a challenge to them to be back at next year's award luncheon.

Representatives of 41 firms attended the meeting at Bliss Restaurant. Fourteen Cone Mills supervisors were present.

Edna Plant, Reidsville, won a third year ribbon, received by Randy Stone.

The Electrical, Construction and Maintenace crew won a first year small unit certificate.

Proximity Y's Men Award Trophies

Proximity Y's Men's annual Junior Basketball Tournament for boys and girls closed last Tuesday night with the awarding of the trophies at a dinner at Proximity YMCA. All of the participants were guests at the event honoring the winners. Speaker was E. M. Holt, assistant vice president of Cone Mills Corporation. Cone Mills Vice President Sydney M. Cone, Jr. congratulated the teams and the Y's Men.

Mr. Holt expressed appreciation to the Y's Men's Club for making possible the basketball season for the young people of the community.

"To live with our fellowman, we have to learn how to get along with him and there is no better way than through competitive sports. Through sports we get comradship of teammates, respect for and of opponents, joy of winning as well as the ability to take defeat. It is my belief that because you have taken part on a team, you have respect for others, you are tol-

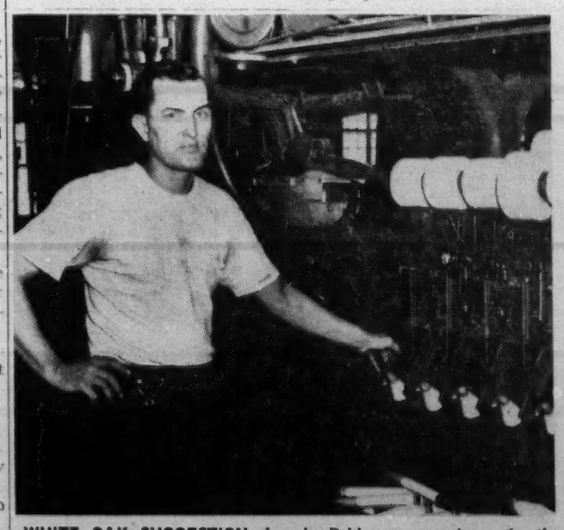
TRIM FIGURE FOR EASTER—Women in Salisbury are winning the battle of the bulge! Operation Take It Off is now under way and weapons consist of determination, tape measures, scales and certain pieces of equipment shown here. At left, Mrs. W. A. White is being weighed in by Mrs. Ken Monroe. These women are co-founders of the movement to streamline themselves as well as others. Mrs. Monroe is employed in the Salisbury Plant office. At upper right Mrs. White is on the "Back-fat" removing table with the "Tummy" machine on top. Lower right shows Mrs. Monroe in the "Hippy" chair with her feet on the foot and leg slimmer, reading up on calories.



WHITE OAK SUGGESTION—Lannie Pridemore, employee in the Spinning Department at White Oak Plant, came up with the idea to replace the oilite bearings in the Spooler "pockets" with a needle bearing. This should reduce the choke-ups in the pockets. Mr. Pridemore received an award from Cone Mills Corporation for this suggestion.

A Tribute To Life

Two weeks ago, the Textorian carried a feature story on a Cone Mills employee's child who is being given the chance to continue her school work even though her health will not permit her going to public school. This is only one of the many services performed by the Society for Crippled Children and Adults through funds contributed in the Easter Seal campaign.

At this time of year when the earth is actually being reborn, no greater tribute to Life itself can be made than by helping others to live, not merely to exist.

Gone are the dark existence days for the physically handicapped when they were barred from normal pursuits which they can now enter with special care and training. Last year alone, the Greensboro Society for Crippled Children and Adults gave assistance to 52 children and 12 adults in the city and surrounding Guilford County. The society's homebound teaching program brought visiting teachers to the homes of 30 children who were not able to go to school. This and other aid, supplementing the work of the health and welfare agencies, is not limited to any race, creed or color; nor is it confined to any one type of crippling or cause of crippling.

It would be a good idea to find those Easter Seals that were mailed to you some time ago and stick them on your correspondence in order to transmit the message of the fine work of the Society for Crippled Children and Adults. Then contribute what you can before next week is over. Your money will be put to good use throughout the year.

No 'Limit' on the Stream of Production

No matter how hungrily the trout are rising to a skilfully presented fly, there is a strict limit to the number of fish you can keep. Fortunately, our American economy does not have any fixed limits, like a trout stream. One of the worst of many mistaken ideas the socialists spread is the theory that the only way any group can have more is to take it from some other group. But if you believe that, you have to believe that there is only a limited number of things to be done in this country—a limited amount of goods and income to be produced, and only a limited number of jobs that can be created.

If this were true, real wages of factory workers could not have increased by many times from those of 1900. Not even if owners gave up all of their share. Actually, the average percentage shares of workers and owners has stayed about the same. If machines limited jobs, we wouldn't have over 62 million jobs, because machines now do 95 per cent of the work. The fact is, there is no visible limit to our ability to have more of everything, so long as we aim at producing more, not dividing less—and continue to invest in new ideas, new processes, and new machines, in an expanding economy.

Team Work Prevents Accidents In Plants

Team work is what keeps production in any plant. In fact, it's team work—between workers and management—that has pushed production in this country to an all-time high. Team work prevents accidents, too. Team work for safety can push accidents down to an all-time low. All we have to do is think of the other fellow's safety as well as our own. It's just a matter of good citizenship and good sportsmanship.

Take the matter of safe driving. The really safe driver not only looks out for his own safety, but he makes sure he doesn't endanger the life of anyone else. He gives up his right-of-way sometimes to help another driver out of a jam. He slows down to let a driver cut back. It's not just a matter of the one driver having the right-of-way or being in the right, it's a matter of a little team work preventing accidents. The safe driver knows that someday he may do a foolish or reckless thing on the road and that it will take team work for some other fellow to prevent an accident.

What applies on the road also applies in the plant. It's not just a matter of your working safely and following all the rules yourself. You've got to think a little bit about the other fellow's safety too. You've got to lend a hand occasionally to prevent or avoid an accident that may involve him.

Suppose you're doing all you can to keep loose objects off the floor. You keep your own work space clean, use the trash barrell for all your waste. Suppose you see another fellow accidentally drop a couple of bobbins in an aisle. What do you do? Yell at him to come back and pick the stuff up? Let the bobbins lie there for someone to trip over? Report it? Or do you bend over and pick the materials up before someone trips over it? You might tell the fellow that he's dropping something accidentally, but isn't it sensible to pick it up before someone trips on it and hurts himself? That's just a simple example of how you cooperate with the rest of the employees in the plant to avoid an accident.

You can never tell what kind of situation is going to pop up in which team work is needed to prevent an accident. You've got to solve each one as it arises by working together and helping the other fellow out.

For team work in safety, remember the following points.

1. If you have any suggestions for making the plant a safer place to work don't keep it to yourself. Let others know about it.
2. If you see something wrong, don't pass the buck. If you can't correct it easily yourself, report it and make sure that someone else takes care of it.
3. If a job is too big for you, get help. And give the other fellow a hand if he needs it.
4. Think a little for the other fellow—his safety may depend on you. (Safety Bulletin—N.C.I.C.)

Here's a Red Cross reminder. Mops, pails, pots and pans are simple household utensils. But when left in the wrong places, such as stairs, there are accidents waiting to happen. Put them away—or they'll put you away.

A man is incomplete until he's married; then he's really finished.

Apple-Berry Sauce Fruit Mold

In a holiday season marked by rich foods, this salad mold comes as a refreshing contrast. It is light, cool, fruity. And pretty — being rosy in color and sparkly. (Turned out on a white plate, the rosy hue of the jelly is dramatic!)

In the salad are juicy pineapple chunks and banana slices, and a new canned fruit sauce — apple-berry sauce — that taste of raspberries and apples. Which is no wonder. The sauce itself is a zesty blend of apple sauce and strained red raspberries. All these fruit flavors have been captured in this jellied mold.

You can serve the mold as dessert, maybe with cheese as a go-along. Or offer it as a jellied relish with roast pork or turkey. Or use it as a salad on a party buffet table — and watch the eagerness with which guests approach it. (For a buffet party, better make two, one for each end of the table. They'll go fast.)

The mold is easy to make. Few ingredients are needed. You can put the whole thing together in skimpy minutes. Set it in the refrigerator to chill, and there's your fruit mold in short order.

Apple-Berry Sauce Fruit Mold

1 pkg. lemon gelatin
½ cup boiling water
2 cups canned apple-berry sauce
2 medium bananas, sliced
1½ cups pineapple chunks
Water cress
*Fluffy Dressing

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; add apple-berry sauce. Mix well. Add bananas and 1 cup pineapple chunks. Pour into mold which has been rinsed in cold water; chill until firm. Unmold on water cress. Garnish with remaining pineapple chunks. Serve with fluffy dressing. Yields 6-8 servings.

*Fluffy Dressing: Mix equal amount of whipped cream with mayonnaise or salad dressing.

The Bible Speaks To Your Need

By Rev. W. L. Bennett, Pastor Sixteenth St. Baptist Church

Everyone who ever came into this world came into it to live except Jesus. He came into the world to die. The only reason there was a Bethlehem was that He might have a Calvary. On Christmas, He was wrapped in swaddling clothes; on Calvary He was fastened on a gibbet. But while the wooden manger was first in intention. Truly, Jesus is the "Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." (Rev. 13.8). Now, why did Jesus come to die?

First, He died to expose the awfulness of human sin. Let us never forget that it was sin that nailed Jesus to the Cross, and it was sinners who did the work. There were three demonically inspired groups who coalesced to do the "dirty work"—the religious folk, the politicans, and the average man of that day. Today, these same forces—religious, political, social—are operating still to crucify the Son of God afresh. And looking backward to Calvary, we sing "Were you there when they crucified my Lord" Yes, you were there. For it was sin, your sin and mine, that nailed the Savior to the Cross, that plaited the crown of thorns and pressed it on His brow, that drove the nails into His hands and feet, that lifted Him up between earth and sky and left Him there to suffer and die. As we think about that, surely we should say, "If this thing in my life that we call sin could do a thing like that, then I am going to turn my back upon it forever."

Secondly, He died to redeem man from his terrible sin. While the Cross exposes man, unveils his true colors and shows him to be a "God hater." it does not stop with condemnation. Sin, unatoned for, means spiritual death now and in the hereafter hell. Paul had a horror of his own sin, as expressed in his cry, "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" (Rom. 7:24). This doubtless is a reference to the Roman custom of tying a murderer to the body of his victim, without hope of release until decomposition had reduced the corpse to a skeleton. One can well imagine the passionate longing to be free from such an intolerable burden. But the man who carries sin in his heart has this burden, this horror, the very presence and power of destruction and death working in him. He is chained to death and encompassed by destruction. Herein the Cross becomes "the power of God and the wisdom of God." (1 Cor. 1:24). For the Cross, through erected by sin, is God's sin deliverer. The blood shed on the hill called Golgotha justifies, cleanses, reconciles and sanctifies forever from sin's guilt, penalty and power. Hallelujah for the Cross! It works "hath delivered us (those who truly repent and believe) from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son." (Col. 1:13).

AMERICA BY 1975

America by 1975 will be a land in which our economy will need nearly twice as much energy as it uses now, according to a report from the National Association of Manufacturers.

The NAM quotes from a 1954 address titled "Promise of a Growing America," by Mr. Earl Bunting, former managing director of NAM.

Mr. Bunting says, in part:

"...Only 50 years ago the work-energy output of people and animals combined ... was greater than all work-energy output from mineral fuels ... Mineral energy and machine do 95 per cent of the physical work today.

"It has been estimated that by 1975 our economy will need nearly twice as much energy as it uses now, from basic energy sources."

Cone Y Game Room Proves Popular

The game room of the Cone Memorial YMCA has been well received by members since its reorganization, giving bowling alleys, billiard tables, ping pong tables, checkers and dominoes. This has become one of the most highly patronized recreational rooms in the Proximity building of recent months with more than 2,000 people availing themselves of the billiards alone, not to say anything of the other facilities. The billiard room is under the supervision of Fay Gilbert, physical director and his associates Earl Caviness for those on the second shift and Frank Bason for those on the first and third shifts.

erant of others and you appreciate the good qualities of others."

Mr. Cone recalled that his interest in local sports went back for more than 30 years. He said that he played shortstop on the White Oak Card Room team in 1925. The company official congratulated the winners of the basketball tournament and commended the Y's Men for their interest in community activities.

Mr. Holt presented the trophies and certificates of award.

Outstanding player awards went to Belle Smith and Donnie McDaniel.

Tournament trophies were awarded to the Whippets, first place team for girls, and to the Deacons, first place team for boys. Belle Smith, captain of the Whippets, received their trophy, and Tommy Edwards, captain of the Deacons, received theirs.

Runners-up were the girls' team Pink Poodles, captained by Ramona Shelton, and the boys' team the Celtics, captained by Billy Swafford.

Tommy Edwards was the high scorer for the boys' tournament, and Joan Riddle was high scorer for the girls.

Miss Maxine Allen was coach for the girls, and Fay Gilbert for the boys.

H. M. Angel led the group in singing and in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

Local YMCA Aids In Religious Life

The Young Men's Christian Association always emphasizes the spiritual aspect of its program, attempting at all times to incorporate Christian ideals at the point of fair play, honestly, goodwill and clean sportsmanship. These have strong carry-over values into manhood and womanhood and make strong citizenship in adult life as these young people enter the business and professional world.

There were six meetings last month at Cone YMCA in which some 218 people participated in Religious meetings and lecturers. The local YMCA staff, in addition to their regular duties at the associations, cooperated with the churches with more than 600 people.

Little Talks With Big Thoughts

"Bill of Rights for Boys"—
by the Hon. Herbert Hoover

1. Like everybody else, a boy has a right to the pursuit of happiness.

2. He has a right to play so that he may stretch the imagination and prove his prowess and skill.

3. He has a right to the constructive joys of adventure, and the thrill that are a part of an open life.

4. He has a right to affection and friendship.

5. He has a right to the sense of security in belonging to some group.

6. He has a right to health protections that will make him an inch taller than his dad.

7. He has a right to the education and training that will amplify his own natural bents.

8. He has a right to accept the obligations of citizenship in a democracy—perhaps the greatest right a boy or anyone else, can have.

We add to these:

He has a right to religious training, to a knowledge of spiritual values that will be a guide to his life and to a better world for him to live in.

This is also a Bill of Rights for girls.
